FUND OBJECTIVE

The Income MultiFund aims to provide a low risk, low volatility investment option over the medium to longer-term.

The Sub-Fund is actively managed and is not managed in reference to any benchmark. It is managed by reference to a performance target which is to outperform USD 3M SOFR over a minimum three years.

SUITABILITY & RISK AND REWARD

The Income MultiFund is suitable for clients with an investment time horizon of a minimum 3 years. Investing in the fund involves a risk to capital in order to achieve the desired return.

To achieve the investment objective, the portfolio invests across a range of asset classes within a strategic and tactical asset allocation framework designed to maximise diversification benefits. An absolute and relative valuation-based approach underpins this framework, resulting in a multilayered process to facilitate disciplined decision-making and risk management.

Portfolio construction combines exposures to active fund managers, who are expected to outperform their defined benchmarks and passive investment vehicles which provide low cost access to markets. This blend of active and passive funds is used to create a competitively priced investment solution.

1) The annualised total return is the average return earned by an investment each year over a given time period. Performance is calculated for the portfolio and individual investment performance may differ as a result of initial fees, the actual investment, the actual investment date, the date of any reinvestment and dividend withholding tax. Data source Nedgroup Investments (IOM) Limited.

2) The on-going fee is a measure of the actual expenses incurred in the management of the Classes of the Sub-Fund. The on-going fee shown is expressed as a percentage of the monthly average value of the portfolio calculated over a 12-month period as at the date shown. The current on-going fee cannot be used as an indication of future on-going fees. A higher on-going fee does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low on-going fee imply a good return.

KEY RISKS

- The Fund could lose money if a counterparty with which the Fund trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider.
- Shares can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result.
- The Fund invests in other funds (including exchange traded funds and investment trusts/companies), which may introduce more risky assets, derivative usage and other risks, as well as contributing to a higher level of ongoing charges.
- The Fund may use derivatives with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations.
- If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund or you invest in a share class of a different currency to the Fund (unless 'hedged'), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates.
- Securities within the Fund could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses.
- The value of an investment and the income from it can fall as well as rise and you may not get back the amount originally invested.
- Tax assumptions and reliefs depend upon an investor's particular circumstances and may be subject to change.

MARKET COMMENTARY

2022 was an eventful and extremely challenging year, and one that most long-term investors will want to forget (as such we will keep this review short!). The main underlying culprit for the disappointing equity and bonds market returns last year was high and rising inflation. This led to central banks around the world to raise interest rates sharply and in doing so putting downward pressure on almost all asset classes.

The year started with a significant shift in narrative by central banks, from a position that high inflation was purely transitory to concern that high inflation risked becoming embedded. This about-turn ultimately led to a tightening in monetary policy with the US Federal Reserve raising its target interest rate for the first time since the pandemic. However, Russia's invasion of Ukraine towards the end of February was unquestionably the main story of the first quarter. While Russia is not a very large part of the global economy, Russia is a major energy and commodity producer (Ukraine is also a sizeable exporter of wheat and sunflower oil) and the escalation of tensions pushed energy and commodity prices to extreme levels, exacerbating the surge in inflation caused by supply chain disruptions as a result of the pandemic, and acted as a risk to global growth; especially given the dependency of Europe on Russian gas and oil.

With Q2 came more concerns around inflation. At already elevated levels, any hopes of more transitory pressures were completely quashed as high energy costs, rising wages and broader input prices took hold. Coupled with supply side shocks in the form of localised China lockdowns (thanks to a zero COVID approach and questionable vaccination program) and of course the continued impact of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Q3 initially started well with July proving to be a very good month for markets. Somewhat paradoxically, it was concerns over global growth (and increasing recessionary fears) that helped to provide support to risk assets, as slower growth expectations helped to temper the extremely high interest rate expectations. In a sense 'bad news' on the economy, was 'good news' for markets. Sentiment then changed in the second half of the third quarter when focus shifted to the further deterioration of Europe's energy situation (with record high electricity prices in most countries), higher-than-expected US inflation numbers, even more hawkish central bank rhetoric, and a farcical 'mini budget' in the UK. In terms of the latter, markets unsurprisingly questioned the unfunded nature of the wide-ranging tax cuts, on top of the previously announced government financed freeze in energy bills. This put upward pressure on bond yields, a sharp fall in sterling, and an increased probability that the Bank of England would have to raise interest rates substantially. A broad market sell-off of UK listed assets ensued, made worse by the adverse reaction in some UK pension funds when long dated bond yields jumped higher.

With the exception of a weak December, the final quarter of the year proved to be very good for markets. Sentiment was supported mainly by a decline in expectations for interest rate increases, with speculation that central banks (specifically the Fed) would start to 'pivot', become less hawkish and start to slow the pace of rate increases as inflation showed signs of peaking. The restoration of some stability in the UK government, with Rishi Sunak replacing Liz Truss as Prime Minister, and a greater emphasis placed on fiscal prudence also assisted in stabilising markets, especially UK government bond markets. Warm weather in Europe helped to reduce natural gas demand, alleviating some pressure on governments looking to stockpile ahead of winter. Another positive for the markets stemmed from China, where official announcements seemed to suggest that they were moving away from their zero Covid strategy, despite paradoxically seeing a recent surge in cases numbers.

How has this translated to financial markets?

In truth it has been a particularly horrible year for market returns, with both risk assets and more traditional defensive assets (such as government bonds) being negatively impacted by events. Equities fell sharply with global equity markets down -16.0% over the year, although it could have been much worse if not for a strong final quarter. Market weakness was broad-based in 2022, with US (-19.8%) and Emerging Markets (-15.5%) down the most. Only the UK (+7.1%) was able to buck the negative trend and produce gains, in local currency terms. However, this mainly reflected the higher exposure to energy stocks in the index, with Energy (+34.4%) the only sector to produce a positive return last year. Defensive sectors such as Utilities (-3.8%), Healthcare (-5.7%) and Consumer Staples

(-6.0%), outperformed on a relative basis. At the other end of the spectrum Communication Services (-35.3%), Information Technology (-30.9%) and Real Estate (-24.0%) stocks were the weakest areas. In terms of style, value stocks (-6.9%) significantly outperformed the more interest rate sensitive growth stocks (-28.5%) in 2022.

Unfortunately, unlike normal risk-off situations, there was no place to hide within 'safe-haven' fixed income markets, as concerns over higher central bank interest rates and inflation meant both government bonds and high-quality credit fell sharply over the period. Global bonds markets end the year down in the region of -11%, not far off equity declines for the year! Looking at the detail, global government bond prices fell by -10.0% (UK government bonds fell a staggering -24%), on higher interest rate expectations as did global investment grade credit falling -14.0%. At the 'riskier' end of the credit spectrum global emerging market debt (-16.5%) and global high yield (-11.4%) were also weak during the year, but notably not as much as some of the more interest rate sensitive bond markets.

Real assets, such as listed property securities fell sharply, especially when compared with equities over the year, with the global REITs index down -23.6%, due to the combination of higher interest and slower economic growth expectations. Listed infrastructure (-6.5%) was also not immune to the general market sell-off but its more defensive qualities meant it outperformed on a relative basis. Commodities (+16.1%) were really the only bright spot in terms of return last year, however, even these masked big divergences in the underlying subsector performance. Crude oil (+24.9%) and agricultural prices (+15.5%) rose strongly on the back of supply concerns because of the because of the Russia / Ukraine war. In comparison, industrial metals (-2.4%) fell on the back of global demand concerns, whilst at the same time gold (-0.7%) was weak because of a very strong US dollar and higher interest rate expectations.

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The end of December saw the Growth MultiFund fall slightly by -0.4% on the month, closing on what was the best quarter of the year in which the fund rose +2.0% for the GBP share class. This helped to recover some of the losses experienced in 2022, during which the fund was down -9.2%. The USD share class has fared similarly (-0.2%, +2.4% and -8.6% for the month, quarter, and year). Whilst the longer-term cash (+) targets have been missed the performance relative to peer group has continued to be strong with the GBP share class ahead by +0.5% in 2022.

Fixed income positions were mixed on the month, positive on the quarter. Concerns over inflation and rising interest rates meant bonds prices fell (yields rose) sharply in 2022, especially the more sensitive longer maturity bonds. This meant our US government bond holdings via Vanguard US Government Bond Index (-12.5%) and iShares $ Treasury Bond 7-10yr ETF underperformed the shorter maturity iShares $ Treasury Bond 1-3yr ETF position (-3.8%). A similar picture was also seen in investment grade credit with the longer maturity PIMCO Global IG Credit (-15.5%) position falling more than the shorter dated investment grade credit holdings, Lord Abbett Short Duration Income Fund (-4.1%) and PIMCO Low Duration Global IG Credit. We have been gradually reducing exposure to credit in favour of longer-dated government bonds (and inflation-linked bonds) as yields have moved higher and more central bank tightening is priced into bonds. In essence, preparing the portfolio for the next leg in the economic cycle, slower growth but also the possibility of lower but more persistent inflation than the past.

Elsewhere, there were a wide range of performances within our real asset and alternative strategy space. However, rising interest rates were a headwind for most holdings this year and it is important to note that the sharp sell-off in UK listed assets after the farcical UK 'mini-budget' announced in September also translated into an abrupt decline in many of the listed investment trust prices. Fundamentally nothing had changed but some have not yet recovered from the Liz Truss 'shockwave'.

The portfolio's small holding in high dividend paying UK stocks via the iShares UK Dividend ETF was little changed in December but recovered strongly in Q4 (+21.9% on the quarter) after it had dropped steeply in September, ending the year down -11.9%. Within property, BMO Commercial Property was down marginally in December, but recouped some lost ground in Q4 (+12.0% on the quarter) to end the year declining -11.8%, the performance of our two UK care home exposures were also negative in 2022, Impact Healthcare REIT (-6.7%) and Target Healthcare REIT (-27.5%) being impacted by higher interest rates and the move in UK markets in September. As was our more recent investment in Empiric Student Property.

Within infrastructure, our overall exposure to renewable energy infrastructure was mixed in December, but positive in Q4 and very positive for the year overall, with Greencoat Renewables (+13.4%), Greencoat UK Wind (+13.5%), and JLEN Environmental Assets Group (+21.1%) benefiting from higher electricity prices and inflation throughout 2022. The more traditional infrastructure holdings, 3i Infrastructure and Atlas Global Infrastructure, were also mixed in December, but very positive in Q4 up +11.8% and +17.7% respectively for the quarter, with 3i Infrastructure (-2.7%) down marginally for the year.

Within our alternative positions the two positions in song royalties, Hipgnosis Songs Fund (-27.2%), and Round Hill Music Royalty Fund (-13.6%), were both negatively impacted by the rise in interest rates during the year (exacerbated by the 'mini-budget' announced in September) given their characteristics of having very long and stable cashflow streams. However, the energy battery storage holdings, Gore Street Energy Storage Fund (+2.9% on the month, +2.7% on the quarter) and Gresham House Energy Storage Fund (-2.1% on the month, -2.0% on the quarter) were together broadly flat over the most recent quarter.

In terms of changes over Q4, we reduced our exposure to property (UK commercial property) due its more cyclical nature and concerns regarding the outlook for economic activity. Exposure to gold was increased in the expectation of slower growth but also a peak in interest rates and a weaker US dollar in 2023. Finally, we added to fixed income, moving to a slightly overweight position, specifically in long-dated US government bonds and global investment grade credit, again in anticipation of weak growth but also falling inflation.
